To evaluate testis volume index (TVI) in the first year of life in healthy boys. One hundred and fifteen boys were investigated at ages 3, 6, and 9 months, and 1, 2, 3, and 4 years. TVI (by Prader's formula) was calculated in the bi-basal approach and compared between age groups. TVI was calculated as 7.5% at 3 months of age, 13.8% at 6 months, 17.6% at 9 months, 24.6% at 1 year, and 26.3% at 2 years. Values at 3, 6, and

Pneumocystis carinii is a fungal organism responsible for a variety of infections in immunocompromised individuals. Two species of pneumocystis are recognized; PCP (pneumocystis pneumonia) is the major form of the disease in humans, while most infections occur with PCT (pneumocystis carinii tetracycline-resistant). In AIDS, the organism can be found either as pneumocystis (PCP) or as PCT. There is an increasing understanding of host response and an interplay of factors that are important in the genesis of these conditions. Specific cytotoxic T lymphocytes (CTL) specific for certain major surface antigens of the organism are usually present in both HIV-1-infected and AIDS patients. The aim of the proposed study is to evaluate the relationship between specific humoral and cellular responses to various pneumocystis antigens as they relate to the clinical outcome of immunosuppressed patients. The following specific aims are proposed: 1. To study the determinants of susceptibility to PCT; 2. To study the role of humoral responses to PCT in the pathogenesis of PCP and 3. To study the role of cellular immunity to PCT in the pathogenesis of PCP. Humoral and cellular responses to purified preparations of two major surface antigens of PCT, (1) the SRA (p21) and (2) the SRA (glycolipid) will be assessed in healthy normal subjects and in SIV-infected animals, which have high levels of antibodies to the SRA. SIV-infected animals will be monitored for the development of PCP and PCT and the immune response to the surface antigens of the organism measured. If such antigens are important in the development of PCP or PCT, and if high antibody titers are important in determining susceptibility to PCT, then an inverse relationship might be demonstrated between PCT susceptibility and the antibody response to the SRA in SIV-infected animals. If the surface antigen of the organism can be shown to be the target of humoral and/or cellular immune responses of an individual, the relationship of specific antibody a69d392a70

Just as important as how the home office looks and feels is how the home office works. A home office that is successful doesn't automatically look successful. For many home office owners, the biggest productivity challenges are social and home space. This is where ClipFast comes in. With ClipFast you can organize your notes and select shortcuts for each note, so with a single key combination you can have your text copied to the current program. Use it where you have to enter the same text regularly, such as filling forms, data-entry programs or e-mail replies. No need to leave your program, just type your key combination and your text will be pasted on your current program. With basic text input features, ClipFast will work well for anyone who needs to enter textual information. To enjoy the full power of ClipFast, you must have a multitasking operating system with support for multiple keyboard drivers. If you only have a single keyboard driver, ClipFast will work best when you have a second monitor. This download is for 64-bit Windows. Notes, Clipboard and Clip folders: ClipFast works by creating a clipboard program (in addition to the operating system's clipboard) that can capture text from any application on the computer. ClipFast stores the text in a separate file folder called the Clipboard. With ClipFast you can have your notes organized into four categories: Notes, Clipboards, Clippings and the Clip folder itself. This can be done with a keyboard shortcut and every time you use it, ClipFast will create a new Clipboard and add it to the Clip folder. Notes: You can create multiple notes and have them saved in one place for quick, one-key access. Each note is considered a separate word, so each note will show up on its own line in the Clip folder and within the Clipboard and Clippings. You can also copy these notes to any application. Clipboards: Each note is considered a separate word, so each note will show up on its own line in the Clip folder and within the Clipboard and Clippings. You can also copy these notes to any application. Clippings: Clipfast will create a Clipping window for every note that you add to the Clip folder. It will set the title to the note's text and you can select the notes you want to display in the Clipping window.
