“The HyperMotion technology really delivers an unprecedented level of realism,” says Jeremy Taijens, FIFA Lead Gameplay Designer. “Players will feel the impact of collisions and ball impacts when tackling.

Players accelerate, accelerate and change direction with authentic movement, enabling us to create more players with high reaction speed and strength while the impacts are noticeably more accurate.” FIFA 22 introduces new features and game modes – including the EA SPORTS FIFA Ultimate League, which adds a new team-based, continuous competition mode with an epic championship mode and a single-season mode based on real-world tournaments, including the 2016 European Championship.

Additional features include expanded coaching and improved gameplay feedback. Watch the FIFA 22 reveal at E3 2017: EA SPORTS FIFA 22 launches on October 29th for Xbox One, PlayStation® 4, and PC.
