Karanja: Battlegrounds is a cool game of war, defense and cross-play between humans and robots in futuristic cities of the near future. The whole experience is set against the backdrop of a battle between humans and robots. Robots are both good and bad, as they are created to do good for the people of the world but are not humans and therefore there are too many automatons in the world. Humans or "Humans" as you would call them, by the way, are the lucky ones of this scenario, as they are the ones able to afford robots to do work for them. As such, they usually live in the city side-by-side with the former slaves who usually work in the battlefields, doing the dirty tasks that robots do not want to do. As the title suggests, Karanja: Battlefields is an FPS cross-platform game designed to be played both on smartphones and tablets. You can control your human (or Robot) avatar by using your fingers or hands. This feature allows you to fight other humans or robots in the game as you would in real life. You will be able to customize your avatar before starting the game and you will be able to choose from a variety of weapons, gadgets, and a variety of characters. ## What's new:

Mobile The decentralized, peer-to-peer photography sharing platform, BunnyShot, is a matching platform for opportunities to monetize the process of taking pictures, across a decentralized network of photographers, models and clients. Every time someone takes a photo there will always be a marketplace where the dynamic is completely honest: "I'm not looking to get rich, I'm looking for a partner to make money with." BunnyShot

modules:

Shared Fund When you share your BunnyShot address your followers immediately get 100 percent of the received transactions. You can decide in the settings who gets how much of your earnings. With the default settings, your account gets 20 percent of the earnings.

Revenue Revenue is paid to the BunnyShot account of the photographer. Collect all your earnings with one single address. BunnyShot is also the preferred wallet for Bitcoin Cash.

Model's Wallet Each BunnyShot wallet contains the wallet of the client and models should be careful because they will receive payments and money from the client directly.

Discourage The first photographs are not rewarded with money. That's the incentive people have to take great pictures. With the Shared Fund, model portfolios are automatically matched to the actual profile data and you get a fair share of the revenues for great photos.

Contests Every week, we offer one big contest to highlight the abilities of our most talented photographers. There are two ways to enter: 1) Your followers can vote your photos via

a link shared through their platform and you'll get payments to your shared address. Results are published every Sunday. The community's voting on the BTS token platform (VOTE*BTS). 2) A second way is to leave a comment here that specifies the photo you want to add to the contest. You'll be matched to the pictures submitted by others following the same creative formula. * BTS tokens are measured in satoshis, or fractions of one Bitcoin, as previously allocated by the developer of the BunnyShot platform. However, all BTS tokens represent convertible value of one Bitcoin with the conversion rate of $1 to 500,000 BTS tokens (that is approximately 2.99300756969533422 BTC at the time of writing). Topics: Full disclosure: The idea, protocol, team, and tokens have been acquired by Creator Coin
