Blackburn's Provident plans to sell part of its lending business to get more debt financing The auto finance provider Blackburn's Provident plans to sell its $2.8 billion PCH Access Business to South African-based private equity firm Amparc for $300 million. The business will be renamed Provident Access Holdings. Provident Access bought PCH for $30.8 million from Blackburn in May 2014. The acquisition will give Provident Access more debt financing, improve its servicing platform, and allow it to expand the number of dealers it sells to. Blackburn's Provident has $6.2 billion in total capital and said it aims to maintain the same capital structure going forward. The PCH Access Business had $2.8 billion in total loans and leases at the end of its most recently completed second quarter. The transaction is expected to close by the end of this year and Provident Access plans to return funds to Blackburn's shareholders. Jay Hendrick, Blackburn's chief financial officer, said the "acquisition will provide additional capital to support continued growth." "The strategic benefits of this acquisition will allow us to serve our customers better and achieve financial targets," Hendrick said in a statement. The announcement comes after Provident Access disclosed its Q2 results in July. It reported a net loss of $27.4 million, or a loss of $0.05 per share, compared to a net income of $35.8 million, or a $0.07 per share, a year earlier. Provident Access said the results included a $1.7 million increase in its loan loss reserves at the end of Q2 2019. As of year-end 2018, Provident Access had $13.8 billion in total debt and $2.7 billion in loans and leases outstanding.Q: Moving a PC / Mac - Windows XP, Vista, 7 Not sure what it
