abstract: | This report gives an overview of the Monte Carlo model for the properties of drift-tube test elements for compact beams at the new positron machine PETALAB1 at DESY. The model, which has been developed within the TRISTAN project, provides a tool for the prediction of drift-tube properties as a function of their position in the beam line and with respect to their surroundings. The model is based on numerical and experimental studies of devices fabricated and analyzed in the TRISTAN part of the project. The model can be used to simulate the performance of complete test element assemblies consisting of drift tubes and supporting devices like gas chambers, electric and magnetic fields. It can also be used to investigate the device-to-device variation and to select appropriate positioning and design of test elements. address: 'Deutsches Elektronen-Synchrotron DESY, Notkestrasse 85, 22607 Hamburg, Germany' author: - 'M.
