I've just set up a nav bar with a menu and i've tried to find out about this problem: When i added in the nav bar a list of links, the nav bar shrinks and it looks weird. I want it to look normal though (i just want a menu that goes right to left and when you click it..it dissapears and when you click again the menu is there again). how can i do this? A: Remove the float: right, and add text-align: left to your nav. Then add display: inline-block to all links. It's probably about time we all had a talk about the way kids are treated in society, and where adults fit into the picture. It's important to realize that the word "children" is used in various ways, depending on who you're addressing and in what context. For example, if you're talking to a parent who's young, and who doesn't happen to have kids, that parent may start referring to their kids as children. But if you 6d1f23a050
